The New York papers are endeavoring to recnteste their readers on the seaboard to almost a state of famine, and riging the farmers of the East to extraordinary exertions in the raising of breadstuffs to supply the deficiency. Thus, we have the following from the Tribune of the 13th: "Buth com and flour were never known to be place extend over a large area of ground, and were

"Buth our and flour were never known to be higher than they see now all over the Western state." The lowest quotation that we can find in the inchest cornegrowing rigions is forty cents a bashel, and from that up to seventy-five. It is on an average three times as high as in any lottoer years, while flour is from ten to twelve dellars a barrel in this market. It is a new era for Wistern farmers. It makes a new era for Eastern consumers. It is the era of high prices—so high that had n any, who are working for custom-say wages, are put to at to get food sufficient to anish the apprints of their families. We venture to prophery that neither of these articles at If fall much hicken the existing price the present year, even with one of the hexaverage crops of the last decide of years. And with such a drawth as that of last season—which is not at all unlikely to happen—the price of corn and flour will probably be flay por can, higher than it is now, and the poor of the city, if not in the current, and it is a constant. The wise will take fixed in time. Agreeably to our former sagges tion, we trust the Eastern States will largely engage, the present season in the cultivation of the certail grains."

After leaving this place the traveller enters ina country that looks novel and interestinga hero he sees one continual vineyard—it is the old ducky of Bergundy, and where the choices wine is made. The appearance of these vine ands at a distance, is like that of a cornfield,the rows,I presume, are farther apart. I observed contrary to my expectations, that there was no tuellis or wall of any kind for the vines to run on No ground is suffered to be lost, and the ine is seen growing upon precipitous sides of i illa where it would be difficult for anything else tolive. At this season of the year the stalks lok led and dry. I saw no buildings separate and spart for the purpose of pressing the tuce from the grapes, similar to our citler mills, and conclude that the old primitive way of treading it out with the fect is used by each of the ultivators of the grape. The wines of France form one of the leading exports of the empire Phoy are twenty per cent, higher now on ac count of a partial failure of the crop last year.

The peasantry are very plainly dressed and ook cheerful and bappy. As the mountainous districts are approached, one sees fewer horses end more donkeys. The women, too, are seen more frequently in the woods, driving these shall but useful animals—also in the fields at work with the men. Dijon and Chalons were presed towards night. They looked old and antiquated, with their great domes of churches peering far above the other buildings, and the r une of old castles and fortifications on the suranding hills. So it is The wished for rains of April have the focus where the commerce of the north and south meet. It is situated on two great rivers, the Rhone and Saone-has a lively look in the ever, teason to believe that the great West will in its external appearance, and contains a popular biatle and activity of its atreets-looks stately lation, including its suburbs, of more than 200. 000. But on panotrating to the interior one is almost lost in the long narrow lanes and atracts n which are built lofty stacks of houses where hebt and air can bardly ever come. Many of these streets are not more than from ten to fif-tren feet wide.

While threading my way through these streets it occurred to me that the authorities had been less liberal than the carly proprietors of the good ci y of Kenosha, where the land cost the ener come sum of ten shillings per sere. But I approbend speculation had but little to do in laying out European cities-they were built in ancient times, when it was necessary to have them enclosed with walls and fortifications, and constquently they huddled together as near as possible in order to increase their defences. Generally siics wore selected where there were many natur il harriers such as on the side high of precipitous mountains, lofty banks of rivers, or on bold, to ky cousts of an ocean or set. Although this city has the appearance of great grandeur part cularly in reference to its quays, bridges, and na commanding fortifications, yet many of us narrow streets and lanes are so disgustingly filthy, that it is difficult to pass through them. A most magnificent view of the city and its and urbe together with the aumounding country may be had from the summit of Mount Fournors. It is almost in the centre of the busy city, and the hum of voices and distant din of carriage wheels passing over its rough payoness comes up to one's ear like a whisper. On the summit of this bill there is a tower, the top of which is 690 feet above the flaces. Here one

The County Supervisors and the House of Refuge There are found sometimes in this world large bodies of man, large communities, who think slike | when exhibitated by any other decection or in upon certain subjects and act in concert for certain ends, and when the objects are the amelioration of humanity, the good of the rising generation, their rescue from ignorance, degradation, crime, and its appropriate, punishment, and then education and elevation to the high priviliges and duties of American citizenship, we seldom find any division of feeling in the community. The Sentenel was the first to advocate the establishment in this County, of a House of Refuge for Juvenile Delinquents and has followed up the subject till a bill for the purpose passed the late Legislature and became a law. The proposition seemed to meet with the hearty concurrence of everybody; no shadow of opposition wrote them. arose, from any party, nationality or religious faith. The institution was desmed humans and is erected a monumental chapel, in the form of a necessary And now, the first opposition comes at the last moment, and from the seven county members of the Board of Supervisors. We believe that their opposition, though e fectual for the moment, will not be so very long. The House of Refuge most and shall be erected, for the humans portion of the people demand it and we hope that no member of the fam-He is a journeyman tailor, and, when not in likes, and no friend of the families, of the philanthe discharge of high official functions, such as thropic gentlemen who have delayed its erection may ever find shelter beneath its roof

We will venture to assert, and we do it o our own reputation as conductors of a widely circulated Journal, that in the County of Milwaukee, there cannot be found a Minister of Religion whether Catholic or Protestant-a Christian or Infidel—a Judge or a Justice of the Peace—a Lawyer or a Physician-an Editor or a Reporter -R Doist or an Atheist-por an konest man of tound mind, who has ever given the subject of a House of Refuge his attention for an hour, but will say amen to all we have written upon the subject—the sevon excepted. "There is luck in odd numbers, says Rory O'Mcore," and there may be luck in store, for the odd seven who recorded their votes against the erection of a House of Refuge. It has been intimated to us that the reason assigned was, that the city would supply the boys and girls as its inmates, or a greater portion of them than the country part of he county, and that for that reason the county should not be taxed to support the crime of the city, that is, the country part of it. If such was he reasoning of the gallant seven, it was shallow in the extreme, for to long as this county emains undivided, so long must the county, as relles the city part, bear its respective portion the taxes, resulting from crime, and if these lummaries in wisdom still assert or do assign such an excuse as their resson for opposing the wisher of, we may say the whole of the city, and a large portion of the county; if the pality taxation of few dollars, is made the ground of opposition, to refuse to act in concert with the city members on such a subject, we hope they may very soon have ecompos their votes in favor 25 of the crection of County Buildings of their own, in a county of which the City of Milwaukes will nst form a part. Again, do these gentlemen think that their taxes would be increased by a House of Refuge? who offers to take charge of any business in that If that is their opinion, it is erroneous. The taxes of a community were never increased by efforts to prevent crime. It is because these offerts had not sooner been made, that taxation, or that part late sersion appropriated a certain amount of of it resulting from crime dechias risen to so high the shades of their rustic homes, quietly sit down and-after thanking their God that he has so constituted their children, that by no possible event can they ever need the reformatory tuition of a House of Refuge-read, mark, learn and inwardly digest its contents, they will become satished that the course taken by the Sentinel upon the House of Refuge Bill, was that prompted slike by Humanity and Obristianity; that the numercus presentations of the Grand Jarors of the county—the repeated urgent appeals of the Oirout Court Judges-the oft repeated regrets of the Police Justice and the District Attorney at sending children to breathe the malarious roffpence of the county jail-the memorials of the county Board of Supervisors, and of the common council of the city—that all these efforts to build a House of Refuge in the city of Milwaukee, have spring from the deepest and noblest motives that actuate the heart of man Seven only are left in the minority, actuated by motives of a different

There is ever, reason to believe that the great West will the year exhibit its capacity to feed the hungry East, and Wisconsin will do its full share and om thing more. The plan duty of our farmers is to sow ahundantly ; muce they have every reason to expect good prices, and they, whose interes, s have prospered for three years past, while many others have falsen back, owe something to the Desposer of the seasons for successive favor and something to humanity. At the dawn of day on Saturday morning, took a seat in the cars of the Paris & Lyons Railroad and turned my back towards the city, regretting to have so much unseen, and the fascinat one that attach one to this benutiful Capital. The distance to Lyons is some three hundred miles, and is through the most interesting portion of France, not only on account of the fine see very, but its historic associations. The first stopping place of any importance is from the time that Louis VII in 116% built a stn li castle here in the centre of a large forest, to the present time. The palace was completely enovated and restored by the late Louis Phillippe, who followed closely the style and character of the different periods at which it was on sinally constructed. In this palace are shown the spartments originally occupied by Catharine de Medica and Anne of Austria. Also the one occupied by Pore Pius VII when he was an in penal prisoner. Here in one also, took place the mairings coremonies of Louis XV and the Dake d'Orleans In another room there is the small round mahogany table at which Napoleon, in 1814, signed his abdication, a fac simile of wlich, blotted and scratched, is enspended on the walls ; and also at the foot of one of the baiconus is the anot where he took leave of the remnant of the old guard who had followed his for tures to the last, smidst all his reverses, premoth their readers on the scaboard to almost a rious to bis departure for Ebba the same year His hed-room too, is said to remain in the same state of famine, and riging the farmers of the East to extraordinary exertions in the raising of condition as when he left it. A little further on is Montereau, an old lookin; place, but lying in a quiet little valley sur-10 inded by bills. Here, on the 18th of Fel 1814, Napoleon gained a brilliant victory over the silies. A spot is shown on the brow of the bill, overlooking the town, where with his own hands, he levelled and pointed his artillery guns at the enemy. Again a little further on is Montbord, an unimportant place, but distinguished as tle birth-place and residence of the Naturalist Buffon The chuteau occupied by him is still standing and occupied by his son's widow, who i- at an advanced age. they destroyed his father's tomb, scattered his ones, and melted his coffin After leaving this place the traveller enters ina country that looks novel and interestingwhere he sees one continual vineyard—it is the old ducky of Bergundy, and where the choicest wine is made. The appearance of these vineyards at a distance, is like that of a cornfield,the rows, I presume, are farther apart. I observed contrary to my expectations, that there was no ticllis or wall of any kind for the vines to run on No ground is suffered to be lost, and the vine is seen growing upon Precipitous sides of lills where it would be difficult for anything else to he At this season of the year the stalks look red and dry. I saw no buildings separate and apart for the purpose of pressing the unce from the grapes, simulat to our cider mills and conclude that the old primitive way of treading it out with the fect is used by each of the turm one of the leading exports of the empire how are twenty per cent, higher new on seount of a partial failure of the crop last year.

The peasantry are very plainly dressed and ook cheerful and happy. As the mountainous districts are approached, one sees fewer horses nd more donkeys. The women, too, are seen more frequently in the woods, driving these s nall but useful animals—also in the fields at work with the men. Dijon and Chalous were presed towards night. They looked old and antiquated, with their great domes of churches peering far above the other buildings, and the runs of old casties and fortifications on the surrounding hills. As the cars made but a short halt I had no time to take anything more than a neral observation.

After a ride of fourteen hours through a country of which every foot is interesting to the the focus where the commerce of the north and south meet. It is situated on two great rivers, the Rhone and Scone-has a lively look in the bustle and activity of its streets-looks stately in its external appearance, and contains a poruatton, including its suburbs, of more than 200,-000. But on penetrating to the interior one i almost lost in the long narrow lanes and streets on which are built lofty stacks of houses where hight and air can hardly ever come. Many of these streets are not more than from ten to fif-

While threading my way through these streets occurred to me that the authorities had been less liberal than the early proprietors of the good or y of Kencaba, where the land cost the enerous sum of ten shillings per scre. But I approbend speculation had but little to do in laying our European cities-they were built in ancient mes, when it was necessary to have them enclosed with walls and fortifications, and consequently they huddled together as near as possible in order to increase their defences. Generally allos were selected where there were many netur il barriers such as on the side high of precipiton nountains, lofty banks of rivers, or on hold to ky coasts of an ocean or sea. Although this city has the appearance of great grande tenlarly in reference to its quays, bridges, and rts commanding fortifications, yet many of its nerow streets and lanes are so disgustingly filthy, that it is difficult to pass through them-

A most magnificent view of the city and its burbs together with the sunaunding country may be had from the summit of Mount Fourviers. It is almost in the centre of the busy city, and the hum of voices and distant din o carriage wheels passing over his rough pavement summit of this bill there is a tower, the top of which is 690 feet whore the flaces. For Bleanding, who was a converted alave, greater tortures were reserved. After being scourged and exposed to the fire in an tran ohair, she was delivered over to the beasts in the amphitheatre. These events took place the persecution under Marcus Antonicus, the implacable hater of Christianity, A D. 197."

The Hotel de Ville, with its lofty roofs and oold projections, is another building very imposing in its appearance, and in late times norable as the place where the revolutionary tribunal sat in 1793. Lyons withstood a siege of 63 days, when it was surrendered to the terrorists. Then commenced a human slaughter under the blood-thirsty and infamous Collet d'Herbois, which has no parallel in history He flist commerced with the guillotine, but this proving too slow for his venguance against the ortizens, a chain cable was attached to a row of willows, and to which the miserable victims, sixty at a time, with their bands bound behind their backs, were fastened. At the end of this row of human beings were placed two cannons loaded with grape shot What were not killed by the cannon were knocked in the head, and with life still in many of them, thrown into a pit prepared for the purpose, and buried Thus periahed 2100. JOSEPH HISS OF THE NUMBERS COMMITTEE. This scape-goat of the sins of the Pesping Tom Committee of the Massachusetta Know Nothings, is, it seems, a gentleman of high repute in that remarkable Order.

He is a journeyman tailor, and, when not in reforming numberies, die , ie engaged in cutting oil-cloth coats. He was Secretary of the great State Convention of the K N's., where Gov Gardiner was nominated.

He is also Judge Advocate of the illustrious Order for Massachasetts, or, asig it said they now call the office-he is State Marshal of the Supreme Order of the Star Spangled Banner .-His duty is to preside at the formation of ledger or councils, and to formally inaugurate them. A great man, 18 Joseph.

ipon certain subjects and act in concert for certain ends, and when the objects are the smelloration of humanity, the good of the rising generation, their rescue from ignorance, degradation, crime, and its appropriate, punishment, and their education and elevation to the high priviliges and duties of American citizenship, we seldom find any division of feeling in the community.

The Sentenel was the first to advocate the establishment in this County, of a House of Refuge for Juvonile Delinquects, and has followed up the subject till a bill for the purpose passed the late Legislature and became a law. The proposition suemed to meet with the hearty conarrence of everybody; no shadow of opposition arose, from any party, nationality or religious faith. The institution was deemed humans and necessary And now, the first opposition comes at the last moment, and from the seven county members of the Board of Supervisors.

We believe that their opposition, though ef fectual for the moment, will not be so very long. The House of Refuge must and shall be erected, for the humans portion of the people demand it and we hope that no member of the families, and no friend of the families, of the philanthe discharge of high official functions, such as | thropic gentlemen who have delayed its erection, may over find shelter beneath its roof We will venture to assert, and we do it on our own reputation as conductors of a widely circulated Journal, that in the County of Milwaukee, there cannot be found a Minister of Reigion whether Catholic or Protestant—a Christian or Infidel—a Judge or a Justice of the Peace—a Lawyer or a Physician-an Editor or a Reporter -a Deist or an Atherst-por an konest man of 4th sound mind, who has ever given the subject of a As the brig Robert Burns which left our port House of Refege his attention for an hour, but on Friday evening last, has had a fine favorable will say amen to all we have written upon the wind, she has doubtless tried the straits long subject—the seven excepted. "There is luck in before this time odd numbers, says Rory O'Mcore," and there nny be luck in store, for the odd seron who terorded their votes against the erection of a House of Refuge. It has been intimated to us ond Ward It proved to be a frame building that the reason arranged was, that the city would supply the boys and girls as its immaiss, by a greater portion of them than the country part of the county, and that for that reason the county should not be taxed to support the crime of the city, that is, the country part of it. If such was he reasoning of the gullant seven, it was shallow in the extieme, for so long as this county remains undivided, so long must the county, as well se the city part, bear its respective portion of the taxes, resulting from crime, and if these uminaries in wisdom still assert or do sasign such to excuse as their reason for opposing the wishes of, we may eay the whole of the city, and a large portion of the county; if the patry taxation of a few dollars, is made the ground of opposition, to efuse to act in concert with the city members on and a subject, we hope they may very soon have an opportunity of recording their votes in favor R. R., coneigned to Doussan & Co., of this city, of the erection of County Buildings of their own, a county of which the City of Milwankes will not form a part.

Again, do these gentlemen think that their taxes would be increased by a House of Refuge? If that is their opinion, it is erroneous. The taxes of a community were never increased by efforts to prevent crime. It is because these forts had not sooner been made, that taxation, or that part of it resulting from crime dress has risen to so high a figure. If these gentlemen will take any work upon crime, or javenile delinquency, and under the shades of their rustic homes, quietly sit down | der Ruxo's Notices and-after thanking their Gud that he has so constituted their children, that by no possible event can they ever need the reformatory tuition of a House of Refuge-read, mark, learn and inwardly digest its contents, they will become satisfied that the course taken by the Sentinel upon the House of Refuge Bill, was that prompted alike by Humanity and Christianity; that the numerous presentations of the Grand Jarors of the county-the repeated urgent appeals of the Ofrcait Court Judges - the oft repeated regrets of the Police Justice and the District Attorney standing children to breathe the malarious toffuence of the county jail-the memorials of the county Board of Supervisors, and of the common council of the city—that all these (ff)rts to build a House of sch J M Jones, Larson, Muskegon, 65,000 fc lumber Refuge in the city of Milwaukec, have sprung from the deepest and noblest motives that actuate the beart of man Seven only are left in the minority, actuated by motives of a different

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

The Mayor last night notified all good citizens to keep out of those limits, that the military might be able to suppress all riot.

This atternoon a large number of Germans assumbled near the Catholic Cemetery, with a drum and fife. They were expected over this said of the river, but up to the present they had not attempted it.

To-night, for the first itme, the National Guarde, composed mostly of Irish, came out and are now on duty. Rumors are affoot that an attack will be made to-night—but nothing can be accomplished without a heavy loss of life.
